History

A long time ago, Davy Crockett lived on the American frontier. His family stayed in a log cabin in Tennessee. When he was young, Crockett got in trouble at school. One day, he ran away from home. He lived on his own. He learned to camp, hunt, and trap. He returned home when he was 16 and went back to school. He finally learned to read.

When he grew up, Crockett was a soldier. He fought in many battles. Later, he was a politician. He was a very good speaker. He told lively stories about the frontier. He spoke up for people's rights.

Then, he moved his family to Texas. The Mexican government was in charge there. But the people wanted to be free. Crockett joined the fight. He fought in the Battle of the Alamo. It was a very bad battle. Many people died. Davy Crockett died, too.
